Wife Judia's grave was moved in late 1930s from Thurman Bend Cemetery which was inundated by Lake Travis when the Mansfield Dam was constructed. Henry was born in Illinois so joined the Union army (his grave mistakenly indicated he was a Confederate) via Mexico, serving as a corporal in Co A, First Texas Regiment. He had bought land in 1861, before the war began. In 2015, Henry's family ordered a new gravestone that reflected his true Civil War affiliation which he had kept hidden during the Civil War from his Confederate neighbors in Travis County. He is listed in the 1890 special schedule of those who served in the Federal Forces during the Civil War from Nov 1862 to Oct 1865. In 1888, the Austin-American Statesman describes Henry as one of Travis County's "oldest and noblest sons." On his land on the west bank of the Col-
